INDEX OF FUNGI

Edited by Dr Paul M. Kirk with the assistance of Dr Brian C. Sutton.
Compiled by Mrs Valerie Barkham.

USERS GUIDE

The Index comprises a list of names of fungi, including taxa belonging to the Myxomycota and Mastigomycotina which are now considered to be better classified with other groups of organisms. Included are names of new families and infrafamilial names, new genera and infrageneric epithets, new species and infraspecific epithets, and new combinations and new names at all ranks. Nomina nuda are excluded. Checks are not normally made to determine whether earlier homonyms exist for new taxa, new combinations and new names; the legitimacy of entries in this Index cannot, therefore, be guaranteed.

An index for hosts, symbionts or commensals, or substrata of new species, infraspecific taxa and new names is provided after the main list. Only the host of the holotype is listed except where more than one host is given without specification when all are given. An epithet and name index follows the host index comprising specific and infraspecific epithets, infrageneric epithets and infrafamilial names arranged in three alphabetical lists.

The classification, at the rank of order and family, of all new genera is indicated and follows the system adopted in the 7th edition of Ainsworth & Bisby's Dictionary of the Fungi. Where the publishing author does not refer to the order and family to which the new genus belongs, these are indicated by the use of []. Where there is doubt as to the correct classification a '?' is added. Where the genus belongs to a new order this name is included and one of the higher ranks (usually class) to which the new order belongs is added in parentheses. Exceptions to this convention are new genera of Hyphomycetes and Coelomycetes, and all Fossil fungi which are thus indicated.

Editorial comments on the status of names, bibliographic, orthographic or typographic corrections, citations in previous compilations, reference to homonyms and to relevant articles in the Code are indicated by the use of [].

In view of the provision of Arts. 9.1 and 9.3 of the Code concerning typification which apply to non-vascular plants it is not always practicable to determine whether the requirements of Art. 37.1 of the Code have been fulfilled and apparent failure to do so has therefore not been indicated in this Index. Art. 37.5 of the Code requires that after 1 Jan 1990, if the type is a specimen or unpublished illustration, the herbarium or institution where the type is conserved must be specified. In view of this requirement and that referred to in Art. 37.3, the Index now includes this information immediately following citation of the geographical origin of the holotype. Index herbariorum acronyms are employed, if available, or the name of the herbarium or institution is given in full. The collection number, or collector's name and collecting number or date of collection, or reference to other details of the type specimen or illustration, is then given. Citation of the geographical origin of the holotype follows the 'World Geographical Scheme for Recording Plant Distribution' proposed by the IUBS Commission for Plant Taxonomic Databases.

The names of fungal authors are given in full, without abbreviation, except that the given name(s) is reduced to an initial letter(s). It has been found impracticable to determine unambiguous abbreviations for all fungal authors. The only exception to this procedure is Linnaeus who is indicated thus:- L.

The Editor will be grateful for reprints of any papers containing new fungus names, and for notification of any omissions or corrections.

Index of Fungi Supplement

FAMILY NAMES

Compiled by D.L Hawksworth & J.C. David

A preliminary list of the names of the Families proposed for Fungi (including the lichens) was published by Cooke & Hawksworth in 1970 (Mycological Papers 121). Additions and corrections to this list have been accumulated at CMI since this date and the updated list is now ready for publication. The nomenclatural status of all the names in the list is indicated following the rules in the latest edition of the International Code of Botanical Nomenclature.

The compilation follows the same style as current parts of the Index. Following the publication of this supplement new names of families and any corrections will be incorporated into future issues of the Index of Fungi. Orders for the Family Names list should be placed with Central Sales, CAB International, at the address overleaf.

INDEX OF FUNGI

Since 1940 the Index of Fungi has listed, with full bibliographical citations, the names of all new genera, species, infraspecific taxa, new combinations and new names of fungi. Lichens have been included since 1971 and all names at and below the rank of family for all groups have been included since 1987. The names are arranged alphabetically under genera and a host index and epithet index is provided for each part. Two parts appear each year and cumulative indexes are prepared for each volume covering ten years.

The Editor will be grateful for reprints of any papers containing new fungus and lichen names, and for notification of any omissions or corrections.
